WILLIAM YOUNG
25 Sept. 1762 - 25 Oct. 1839

William Young was a resident of Pennsylvania in the year 1800. A more specific location is not known. Nor is it known whether they came directly from PA to Crawford County, Ohio or whether he is the William who was a taxpayer in Faiarfield County, Hocking Township in 1806; Muskingum County in 1816 or Pickaway in 1816. However, about 1820 William and his wife Mary and their family had settled in Crawford County, Whetstone Township in Section 5. They were the parents of ten children, five boys and five girls. By the time they arrived in Crawford County at least John, Jacob and George were young men. By 1830 they were all taxpayers on 160 acres each. Their other two sons were Michael and William. Their daughters were Elizabeth who married George Black; Polly who possibly never married; Barbara who married Jacob Shaffer, a daughter, name unknown who married a Mr. Burns and was probably deceased by the time her father made his will in 1839. The Burns had two children who were remembered in their grandfather's will with 80 acres of land located in Henry County, Ohio. Their names were Mary (Burns) Fashbaugh and William Baurns. A daughter Nancy, my great grandmother, who married Isaac H, Fickle on Dec. 25, 1825 by Conrad Rath, J.P. Marion County, Ohio. Nancy was born in PA on 31 Dec. 1800 or 1802. (See Fickle Family Hist. for information on the family of Nancy(Young) and Isaac H. Fickle). Perhaps John was also deceased or some other reason his share was given to his sons William and Tobias.

William Young was a large land holder in Bucyrus Twp. at an early day. He gave each of his children 160 acres of land. He built a flowering mill on the fourth section and this was the portion he transferred to George and Elizabeth Black. For some time it was a horse mill and customers could not secure a grist without they took their own horses and were sometimes compelled to wait many hours before their turn arrived.

Perhaps grandfather and some of his sons heard Col. Kilbourne render the Ballad which he composed for the special occasion in the spring of 1822 when the sale of lots in the town of Bucyrus was held. The Col. had laid out these lots. The fourth stanza of the "Song of Bucyrus" begins: "First Norton and the Beadles came,
With friends and enterprising band;
Young and McMichael, men of fame,
Soon joined the others hand in hand."

William spent the rest of his life in Crawford County, Ohio. He made his will on the 22 day of October 1839. Only a few days of life remained for William. He died on Oct. 25, 1839, aged 77 years. His was the first known burial in a graveyard two miles west of Bucyrus on the Wyandot road. His wife Mary survived him and was still living in June 1840.

Dear Roena,

What a pleasant surprise. I hope you are well and the snow doesn't get too deep.

First thing I did was look at my records in computer and found that I've lost quite a few names. I think it happened when my tech put in a plug-in to copy all my Family Tree. So, off to my books and have found some things, here and there, that give me doubts.

It is mostly about Mary Rutledge, I do not think she died in 1840. Am enclosing copies of the records from William's Probate, especially when I found that on that very date, June 3, 1840, she made a transaction with Mr. Aumiller, Exec. It also says under her "X" "Widow of said deceased." There is another transaction signed by Mary Young in 1847, and this one could be their daughter, Polly AKA Mary. (Copies enclosed) Under the last one it does not say who this Mary is. When the sons of William & Mary signed documents it is stated that they are sons.

Besides, if she had died in 1840, surely there would be a record in the Crawford Co., records, or something in a newspaper if they were available at that time.

Then I got curious about what we had previously. You probably have copy of Caroline's document C170, page 2. It lists marriage of William Young to Polly Ridgely, by Pastor Ridgley. Their ages seem right and they named one of the girls Polly. (Was it common that Polly was a nickname for Mary? or visa versa ?) Also, this above came from Maryland Marriages 1778-1800.

I am tempted to be swayed to the Rutledge marriage. I know that Maryland is close by, but usually a marriage would take place near the bride and groom's homes, this presumably would have been Pennsylvania.

Was there more information about William's children with Mary Rutledge. I show he had 10 children, if Polly and Mary are one and the same person. I have a Mary who married a Mr. Burns, who would make it eleven children, including the Polly. The person that filed this information, that you sent, surely would have known about her, Nancy's, siblings. The deeper I go, the bigger can of worms...... Let me know what you decide.

You asked about ANSLEEDS, called him Mr. Leeds. Aunt (Minnie) Margaret Elizabeth Fickle married Harry Nathan Leeds, that's as close as we have. Nope, do not know of an Ansleeds.

I've been keeping good health, just getting old and very ssllooooow. Hear from Nona once in awhile. She's doing ok. Has a lady come in and help her, she has wonderful helpful neighbors. I'm still driving, mostly around W. Sacramento. Take care,

Love,

Cousin Helen

Dear Roena Bayes:

I was interested to see in the Crawford County Tracking newsletter that you had proven a William Young as a pioneer family.

My maiden name was Young and my father could never give me much information on the Young side of the family. If you note the enclosed information you will find that his grandfather died when his father was very young.

The name Fickle is a name I seem to remember hearing. Also, the name Hawk - I remember seeing a picture with "cousin Hawk" written on it.

I would appreciate your help if you know how/or if there is a connection.

John R. Young had a total of six children. Besides Lewis, Clara and Huldah there was Anna, Charles and my father Aaron.

Thank you for any assistance you may be able to give me.

Sincerely,

Rachel Miller

Sent nearly all of the Wm Young information in the note book - did not send the will.

Dear Roena,

Sounds like you have had a busy year, again...

I've signed up for a couple Elderhostels. First one is March, 19th to 24th, in Costa Rica. I'll be with my brother-in-law, his wife (Ralph and Jane) and her sister and husband. The five of us really get along well. We'll all meet in Miami and go from there. I really had hoped to get on a trip to China's silk route next year but my sister-in-law encouraged me to file for enrollment to north of Scotland with them, which I could not resist. We have been accepted and enrolled. It is for Aug. 4-21, not including flight time. It means I cannot attend the OCTA Convention in Baker, Oregon in August.

My house still has not sold but I do have it rented, which I'm not happy about but at least some money is coming in from it. Boy, this depression sure hit at the wrong time, but then again, I guess there isn't ever a good time for one...... I truly like my little house, it's comfortable and NO second floor. Had to have the toilet fixed and found out I will have to have a new sewer line laid within the next few months. So what else can go wrong!!!! I finally got my clothes washer and dryer hooked up a couple weeks ago. Want to re-do the kitchen as soon as I can. If I could sell the old house I could go ahead with it now. The sink is so old it is hard to get white and clean, plus other things, want to redesign and have more cabinets.

This year has really been bad news for the family. In Iowa I lost three special people. Two first cousins, Mildred and Mabel both daughters of my fathers sisters. The other in Iowa was a distant relative on the Fickle (Fickel) side. My half sister, Irene Narver Trussell in Florida, died this month of cancer and Charles Harvey (Narber descendent) who I corresponded with in Colorado Springs, passed in October. Wayne and I went to his ex-brother-in-laws memorial last Saturday. And I just learned from Nona we lost cousin Violet.

Regarding the Fickel "cousin" I am sending information you may or may not want. As I told Nona, it's a bit lateral, just file it and who knows maybe some day someone will be pleased to find it -- I'm referring to the inclosed small file of Joseph Fickel and descendants. Gerald was a dear, wonderful person to know, I feel privileged to have had the few years acquaintance we had.

About the only gene I've done of late is on the Narver/Narber families. Our "Narber/Narver/Nerber Family In The United States" will be at the printer in January. I can't believe it is finished!

There will be one annual supplement. I'd dearly love to go up to Michigan and finish up more on George Narber. Signed up to go to Sutro in January with the club. It's as much to gene as to just get out of town for the day.

Remember, I was supposed to do research for us on John and Tobias Young? Here is a little more info on the Youngs from Rachel Miller.

Do you ever think you will be out this way again for a fun trip, or any other kind...... Would love to have you visit again, maybe this time we could get Nona corralled too.

Love,
Helen

Trinity cemetery. The first burial here was in 1824, Rachel Cary, wife of Lewis Cary, and that same year was buried Elizabeth Bucklin, the mother of Albigence Bucklin and Mrs. Samuel Norton. Daniel McMichael was buried here in 1825, and also Seth Holmes the same year; also Timothy Kirk and wife. In this yard was buried in 1827, Peter, the colored servant of Lewis Cary, the first colored man ever in Bucyrus.

The next burial ground was the Tiffin grave yard, located on land donated by Amos Clark, and still in existence as a cemetery, but for many years unused as a burial site. The first burial was that of Samuel Yost, the infant son of Abraham Yost, who died May 12, 1827. In these grounds are the last resting place of Samuel Norton, who died April 18, 1856, and his wife Mary Norton, who died April 29, 1859, the first pioneers of Bucyrus. Two other graves there are Thomas Howey, died May 27, 1835, and Joseph Knott, died Nov. 5, 1826, both reported as soldiers who served in the Revolutionary war. Among others buried here of the early pioneers were Isaac H. Allen, the first prosecuting attorney of the county; Elias Cronebaugh who was killed accidentally at the building of the first court house on Dec. 4, 1830; Matthew and Elizabeth Free, Robert Foster, John Heinlen, Abraham, John and Daniel Halm, Elisha Kent, John Kanzleiter, Darius Langdon, Hugh and William McCullough, Hugh McCracken, Matthew McMichael, William V. Marquis, William Magers, John J. Mollenkopf, John Nimmons, Thomas Parks, William Robinson, Thomas Rogers, Conrad Roth, Christian Sexauer, Henry and James Sell, William F. Schindler, John Stineman, Benjamin and Joseph Spahr, James and Matthew Tate, Jonathan Timberlin.

In 1830 the Lutheran grave yard was started, known as the Southern grave yard. It was outside the corporation, and was on the west side of Spring street, between Rensselaer and Warren. When it was abandoned all the bodies were removed to Oakwood cemetery. Among the pioneers originally buried there were George Aumiller, Christopher Boyer, Isaac Ditty, Peter and George Lauck, Peter Miller, Abraham Myers.

There was a grave yard, two miles west of Bucyrus on the Wyandot road, where Joseph Young and many of his family were buried. The first known burial was that of William Young, who died Oct. 25, 1839, aged 77 years.

In the Monnett chapel grave yard the first burial was Margaret Slagle, who died Aug. 22, 1841. John W. Shaw, colonel of the 34th O. V. I., is buried here; also Abram Monnett, who died Aug. 12, 1854. Jeremiah Monnett, the founder of the church, died Sept. 1, 1864, and is buried here.

One mile north of the Monnett chapel was the original Monnett grave yard, on the land of Isaac Monnett. The first known burial was John Monnett, who died Nov. 26, 1831, aged 26 years.

Mt. Zion church has a grave yard, and the first recorded interment is the McIlwain twins, who died Sept. 25, 1866. Another grave there is Esther White, who died Oct. 22, 1884, in the 89th year of her age.

Five miles west of Bucyrus is the Streib grave yard, and the first known interment was Mary Zimmerman on Feb. 17, 1867. Many buried here are over seventy years of age, J. G. Mellenkopp, who died Oct. 18, 1886, being then in his 93d year, and Rev. Michael Streib, who died May 4, 1897, being in his 86th year; Christopher Spiegle, 84; John Steinhilber, 83, and Michael Snyder, 81.

Alanson Packard, himself, married Nancy Fickle in June, 1824, and there is little doubt she was related to the Fickles who settled in the southern part of Bucyrus township in 1823, a daughter of Daniel Fickle, who came here from Marion county.

Since 1845 the following have been the justices of the peace of Dallas township: Andre Corn, 1845; William Hoover, 1847-50; Daniel Swigart, 1848; Ezra Huntly, 1850; Isaac N. Munson, 1851; Samuel P. Shaw, 1852; James Hufty, 1854-57; S. D. Welsh, 1860-63; Henry Martin, 1863-66; William H. Churchill, 1866; Caleb McHenry, 1869-72-74-77-92-95; R. H. Rogers, 1869; E. B. Hinkel, 1905-09.

In 1892, when the Columbus, Shawnee and Hocking railroad was built it passed through the center of Dallas township, and a town was laid out by Mervin J. Monnett, and named after himself and the many representatives of the Monnett family who had been and were prominent in that section. The little village started well. A large elevator was erected by Mr. Monnett; a store was started, and on October 25, 1893, William A. Heinlen was appointed the first postmaster; he has been succeeded by the following: G. J. Feltis, November 30, 1897; D. L. Parcher, December 23, 1901; William Monnett, June 5, 1906; F. G. Smith, April 5, 1910; C. S. Wert, June 23, 1911.

Three quarters of a mile west of Monnett is the Bucyrus and Marion electric road, with a station to accommodate the people of that village.

when the cloud was removed, the people largely returned to their original holdings. The first merchant was Frederick Newman, who did well, and other enterprises followed, including a hotel, dry goods and drug store. blacksmith shops, a cooper shop, a grocery and saloon, and a fine steam saw mill which was owned and operated by Warden & Tracht, and the flourishing steam tile-factory established by Sickman, Fate & Co. of Crestline.

After Magers bought out his partners in the saw mill, he added an addition in which he placed two sets of buhrs and modern machinery for the grinding of grain. The mill was the center of a grain growing and populous region, and did a good business under several owners, but was finally destroyed by fire and never rebuilt. In 1873 Mr. Magers erected a large elevator, which has continued under various owners. In 1862 John L. Caskey and Lewis Holker built a large factory, and went into the carriage business extensively, employing a number of hands, and half a century ago their carriage works were one of the important industries in the county. The first physician in the village was Dr. Frank Duff. On July 26, 1861, the post office was re-established in the Newman store with Frederick Newman as postmaster, and has continued ever since. Mr Newman being succeeded by A. R. Warden, Oct. 29, 1861; James G. Patterson, Aug. 5, 1872; George Railing, April 21, 1875; George F. Darr, Feb. 10, 1881; J. W. Littler, April 25, 1882; E. G. North Robinson has graded schools, their large brick having four rooms. There are two churches, the Lutheran and the United Brethren. North Robinson was the home of Rev. John V. Potts, who wrote several religious works. He was active not only in the U. B. church but also in all religious work, and in some respects was like the ministers of half a century previous;—on horseback or on foot he traveled miles to fill some vacant pulpit.

When the Marion commissioners erected Whetstone township in 1824, Heman Rowse and George Poe were the first justices elected in April, 1825, and their commissions were dated June 18 of that year. The following is the list of Justices of the Peace of Whetstone township:

The settlement of the northern part of the township necessitated schooling for the children, and the first school was held in the cabin of John Beckwith. The cabin was of logs and consisted of but one room. And at one end of this room, the eating and sleeping side was given up to the school. The other end was the kitchen department where the meals were being prepared. The school teacher is unknown, but the fact is handed down that a definite line existed in the cabin, established by Mrs. Beckwith, over which no child dared pass; so the first school was held in the summer of 1824, with mental refreshments being served at one end of the room while bodily refreshments were being prepared at the other. During that winter no school was held, the larger children going to Bucyrus, and the smaller ones picking up what knowledge they could at home. That winter, however, the settlers, cleared a place and erected a small schoolhouse on the farm of Joseph Young, and the first winter it was taught by Moses Arden of Bucyrus. Two years later a log schoolhouse was built east of this. In these earlier schoolhouses time was not taken to square the logs; they were put in place, round as when they came from the trees, and what furniture they had was made by the settlers themselves.

The settlement of the northern part of the township necessitated schooling for the children, and the first school was held in the cabin of John Beckwith. The cabin was of logs and consisted of but one room. And at one end of this room, the eating and sleeping side was given up to the school. The other end was the kitchen department where the meals were being prepared. The school teacher is unknown, but the fact is handed down that a definite line existed in the cabin, established by Mrs. Beckwith, over which no child dared pass; so the first school was held in the summer of 1824, with mental refreshments being served at one end of the room while bodily refreshments were being prepared at the other. During that winter no school was held, the larger children going to Bucyrus, and the smaller ones picking up what knowledge they could at home. That winter, however, the settlers, cleared a place and erected a small schoolhouse on the farm of Joseph Young, and the first winter it was taught by Moses Arden of Bucyrus. Two years later a log schoolhouse was built east of this. In these earlier schoolhouses time was not taken to square the logs; they were put in place, round as when they came from the trees, and what furniture they had was made by the settlers themselves.

Proceeding southward, the center of the township began to be fairly settled, and here in 1828, a log schoolhouse was erected on as on April 15, of that year commissions were issued to Westell Ridgely and Joseph Young as justices of the peace of Sandusky township, Westell Ridgely then living near the present village of Leesville and Joseph Young near Bucyrus, neither town having yet been started or even dreamed of. Sandusky township then was probably from the western boundary of Auburn and Vernon to the western boundary of Bucyrus, about 15 miles, and from the southern boundary of Bucyrus to the north county line, 18 miles. It was easy to be elected to office in those days as witness the following from the recollections of M. Peters, a pioneer of Marion county. "The first election was held (1821) for one justice of the peace. There being no candidates, I selected W. Crawford and he selected me, and thus there was a tie. The clerk of Delaware county cast lot and drew for Crawford." But generosity has its reward as in the fall Squire Crawford resigned and Peters was elected.

The following is a complete list of the district and county officials since the organization of the county, the years given being the date of their election:

them again, and they left for parts unknown, drifting still farther to the west, leaving an empty cabin behind.

But during the year 1820 other settlers, real settlers, did arrive. The Beadles were the first in the spring of that year, David Beadle, with two sons, Mishael and David, and a son-in-law, John Ensley. Next came Daniel McMichael and Joseph Young, and during the year several others. In his song of Bucyrus Col. Kilbourne thus gives them:

> "First Norton and the Beadles came
> With friends an enterprising band;
> Young and McMichael, men of fame,
> Soon joined the others heart and hand."

Poetry is not the best method of writing history, as to preserve the rhythm and meter much of the detail must be omitted, so two of the first pioneers, Bucklin and Holmes, get notice as "friends," the same with son-in-law Ensley. As to Sears, he was not a pioneer and Col. Kilbourne did well to omit him. Young and McMichael, although classed as men of fame, were not more distinguished than Norton and Beadle, but the necessity of a rhyme to "came," occurring in the line with their names, gave them the distinguished honor of being famous.

The Beadles came across the Plains from the Quaker settlement of Friendsborough in Morrow county, and Mishael Beadle had his cabin on West Mansfield street, where the late Silas Bowers' residence now is; this was on the north 40 acres of an 80-acre tract; on the south 40 acres David Beadle had his cabin, and with him was his son, David, a young man of 17; their cabin was near the corner of Charles and Spring streets. The Norton daughters and Mrs. Ichabod Rogers state the Beadles were very migratory, Mishael at one time living across the river at the northwest corner of the Tiffin road and North River street, the old man and young David moving into Mishael's former cabin on West Mansfield. John Ensley, with his wife, Ann Beadle, also lived over the river, near Mishael's second residence. Mishael was married, and in the summer of 1822, the first death occurred, a little son of Mishael Beadle, and Norton gave the ground for a burial site, at the junction of Walnut, Galion and Middletown streets, and here the little boy was buried, the early pioneers all tendering what aid and sympathy they could to the afflicted family. That winter another daughter of David Beadle, named Clarinda, was married and later young David took himself a wife. Mishael Beadle tired of his residence over the river and entered a tract of land south of the present Oakwood cemetery, now the Magee farm, and here he was contented to remain several years, his brother-in-law entering the land just east of him, extending to what is now the Marion road. The Beadles were as fond of hunting as they were opposed to work, and when about 1826, Samuel Myers bought the original 80-acre tract they had entered only eight or ten acres had been cleared. The price paid to the Beadles by Myers for the land was $6 an acre. About 1827 they moved west. Bucklin also left the county, but the Nortons, the McMichaels and the Youngs are still here in the third and fourth generations. Joseph Young entered his first land in section 5, Whetstone township, nearly two miles east of Bucyrus; he built a small flouring mill run by horse power, on the river a mile west of Bucyrus, where Sinn's dam was later built with a regular water-power mill; afterward known as Couts dam. The mill run by horse power meant with him that a man brings his grain, hitches his own horse to the mill, and grinds the grain. He kept no horses himself at the mill. Later he gave the mill to his son-in-law, George Black, and a dam was built, and the mill run by water power and it became an important mill for years to come. Young also gave each of his sons 160 acres, as the tax duplicate of 1830 shows that George, Jacob and John Young each had 160 acres along the river near the mill.

Daniel McMichael came to this section in the fall of 1819, and spent his first winter on the banks of the Whetstone, eight miles from Bucyrus. He was there with his family when Norton was making his trip looking up a location. He was in what is now Crawford county, but then it was a part of Richland county, in the neighborhood of the Sharrocks. Daniel McMichael then moved into Liberty township in the spring of 1820, the first settler in that township, built a grist mill on his land on the river one mile northeast of Bucyrus, the first mill in the county. Then he came first Mishael Beadle occupied the north forty of their first eighty-acre tract, and lived in a cabin which stood on the lot now owned by Mr. Silas Bowers, on West Mansfield street. David Beadle and his son David, aged about seventeen, occupied the south forty acres, and resided in a cabin situated a short distance southwest of the present end of Warren street. The Beadles did not remain in Crawford County, but, several years after they came into possession of this land, sold out to Samuel Myers and moved West." During the brief period these families resided in Crawford County, they occupied several different log cabins. Mrs. Rogers reports that at one time Mishael resided over the river a little south of where Joe Henry lives at the present time; old David Beadle then lived in the cabin formerly occupied by his son Mishaél, and John Ensley over the river near Mishael. During the summer of 1822, Daniel, the little son of Mishael Beadle, died; this is the first death of which any satisfactory proof can be obtained that occurred in Bucyrus Township. The little fellow was buried on Norton's land; the exact site of this first burying-ground is the lot now owned by Hiram Fisher, at the corner of Walnut street and the Middletown Road. During the winter of 1822–23, Clarinda Beadle married a man some seven years older than herself; David Beadle was also married shortly after this, but did not live with his wife very long. Mishael Beadle also entered the Pettitt place now owned by Lorin Converse, which he resided on for several years, and John Ensley afterward located east of this on what was afterward known as the Minich estate. The entire Beadle family was of a restless, roving disposition; they spent considerable time hunting, and disliked hard labor. Samuel Myers, who purchased from them the eighty acres they first entered, at $6 per acre, reports that only eight or ten acres of the land had been cleared, notwithstanding it had been owned by the Beadle family for some six or eight years. The Beadles claimed to be Quakers, and the old man adopted the dress and language of this sect, but was never an honor to the Friends. It is related that he visited Zanesville for the purpose of buying a plow; the store-keeper did not wish to sell plows on credit so far from home, but Beadle talked so honestly that the plow-dealer finally consented. When the old fellow returned to Bucyrus, he made his boasts that his broad-brimmed hat had secured a fine plow; he never paid for this agricultural implement, and several years after he moved West, the Zanesville merchant visited Bucyrus for the purpose of collecting this bad debt; as he never succeeded, it is likely he never, after this experience with Beadle, trusted a Quaker who lived 100 miles from Zanesville.

The Young family, who, according to Kilbourne's song, "soon joined the others hand in hand," first settled in Section 5, Whetstone Township, on the farm now owned by William Holmes, in the Stewart neighborhood. The Young family, however, were large land-holders in Bucyrus Township at an early day. It is reported that the old gentleman, William Young, gave each of his children 160 acres of land; that George Black, who settled in Bucyrus at an early day, and married a Miss Young, received for his portion the fourth section, upon which the Sinn Mill is now situated. Previous to transferring this to Black, however, Mr. Young built a flouring-mill at this point; for some time it was a horse mill, and customers could not secure a grist without they took their own horses, and were sometimes compelled to wait many hours before their turn arrived. The tax duplicate of 1830 proves that George Young owned this fourth section at that time, and John and Jacob Young each had 160 acres southwest of George Young's farm; they were all residents of the township at that time, and a few of the present citizens of Crawford County are descended from the Young family.

stable was chosen; the Trustees appointed Abraham Hahn for the former position, and also James McLean as an additional Constable. In those early days, township offices were generally chosen regardless of the views held by them on national and State politics, and men of both political parties were elected. The political character of the township during the past thirty-two years can be determined by the votes cast for the different Presidential candidates during that period, and the result of each national political contest was as follows: 1848—Cass, Democrat, 207; Taylor, Whig, 214; Van Buren, Free-Soil, 14. 1852—Pierce, Democrat, 282; Scott, Whig, 212; Hale, Free-Soil, 7. 1856—Majority for Fremont, Republican, 95. 1860—Douglas, Democrat, 320; Lincoln, Republican, 419; Breckenridge, Democrat, 46; Bell, Unionist, 5. 1864—Majority for McClellan, 93. 1868—Seymour, Democrat, 535; Grant, Republican, 361. 1872—Greeley, Liberal, Republican and Democrat, 572; Grant, Republican, 394. 1876—Tilden, Democrat, 683; Hayes, Republican, 375; Green Clay Smith, Prohibition, 8. 1880—Winfield Scott Hancock, Democrat, 728; James A. Garfield, Republican, 476; Neil Dow, Prohibition, 11.

The first settlers of Bucyrus Township, and this section of Crawford County generally, reached their new homes by following the route of the old army road which entered the Township just north of the point where the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad crosses the line between Bucyrus and Whetstone Townships. It is said that this rough military road was made by Gen. Crooks, who marched through this section, with his army, in 1813, en route for Fort Meigs. This "old army road" could be clearly distinguished for many years after Crawford County was first settled. In the year 1822, a county road was established "from the southeast corner of Section 13, now a part of Sandusky Township, to Bucyrus; total length nine miles and two hundred and seventy-six rods. John Marshall was the Surveyor, and Marshal Beadle, Joseph Young and David Palmer were Viewers." This is the road in Southern Liberty Township, south of the Sandusky River, and is, possibly, the first surveyed and located from the eastern part of Crawford County to Bucyrus Township; for several years, however, this highway was in an unfinished condition. In the same year, 1822, a State road was located from Norton, in Delaware County, to Sandusky City, in Huron County; this extended through Bucyrus Township, along what was afterward known as the Columbus and Sandusky pike, but the first road was never finished. James Kilbourne was the Surveyor, and Solomon Smith and Luther Coe were the Commissioners. June 8, 1824, the Commissioners of Marion County established another road, "beginning at the east end of Crawford County, at the crossing of the road leading from Wooster to Upper Sandusky, on the line of said county, thence on the nearest and best ground to Bucyrus, making Daniel McMichael's mill a point. Joseph Young and Abel Cary were Viewers." This road was north of the Sandusky River, in Liberty Township, and much of the route has since been abandoned. The same day this road was located, the Commissioners authorized another "from a point on the Marion and Upper Sandusky road, near David Tipton's, thence on the nearest and best route to Bucyrus, making Benjamin Salmon's peach orchard, Benjamin Fickle's farm and David Bryant's, points on said road. Lewis Cary, Daniel Fickle and Samuel Norton were Viewers." This extended through Bucyrus Township, from southwest to northeast, and was near the present location of the Little Sandusky road. and he changed it into Bucyrus as a good sounding name. These two statements are both from responsible and reliable sources; it may be the duty of an unbiased historian to draw conclusions from these facts presented, and endeavor to settle the disputed point, but in this case we will not undertake the task but will refer the matter to the patrons of this work. However, this name Bucyrus did not suit some of the early settlers in the village, who were ill-natured enough to object to the Colonel's ideas about a queer name; it has frequently been, in later years, a stumbling block to many non-residents, who invariably mispronounce the word. But these early residents who objected to the name are nearly all dead, and those who fail to speak the word like a native of the city are not firm believers in the future destiny of the place, and consequently should not be consulted in regard to the name; undoubtedly all of the present inhabitants are satisfied, and many are proud of the name Bucyrus.

The town having been named and surveyed by Kilbourne, during the winter and early spring of 1822, a public sale of lots was advertised and held. By this time, quite a small settlement had moved into the vicinity, and some of these persons were occupying lots which they contemplated purchasing after all the necessary surveys had been perfected. Moderwell writes, in regard to this early sale: "The lots brought from $30 to $45 each; and those disposed of at this sale were all on Sandusky avenue and Walnut street, and but few south of the public square. Besides Samuel Norton, there were living here at that time Lewis and Abel Cary, Lewis Stephenson, Robert Moore, J. S. George, George P. Schultz, Samuel Roth, Harris Garton, Harry Smith, Russell Peck, E. B. and Charles Merriman, and a few others." This first public sale of lots was attended by many of the settlers from the surrounding country, and several farmers bought town lots during the early years of the village. One feature of this first public gathering of citizens to Bucyrus was the rendering by Col. Kilbourne of his "Song of Bucyrus," which ballad the author composed expressly for the occasion. The following is a copy of these verses as published in the Bucyrus Journal of March 24, 1853:

BUCYRUS SONG.

Ye men of spirit, ardent souls,
  Whose hearts are firm and hands are strong,
Whom generous enterprise controls,
  Attend! and truth shall guide my song.
I'll tell you how Bucyrus, now
  Just rising, like the star of morn,
Surrounded stands by fertile lands,
  On clear Sandusky's rural bourn.

In these wide regions, known to fame,
  Which freedom proudly calls her own;
Where free-born men the heathen tame,
  And spurning kings—despise a throne.
No lands more blest, in all the West,
  Are seen whichever way you turn,
Than those around Bucyrus, found
  On clear Sandusky's rural bourn.

The river valley, rich and green,
  Far as the power of sight extends,
Presents a splendid rural scene,
  Which not the distant landscape ends.
The bordering plain spreads like the main,
  Where native fruits its sides adorn,
And nearly join the margin line
  Along Sandusky's rural bourn.

First, Norton and the Beadles came,
  With friends (an enterprising band);
Young and McMichael, men of fame,
  Soon joined the others, hand in hand;
By various plans t' improve the lands,
  They early rise with every morn,
Near where the town Bucyrus stands,
  All on Sandusky's rural bourn.

There teams of oxen move with pride,
  Obedient to their driver's word;
There the strong yeomen firmly guide
  The ploughs which cleave and turn the sward,
The dale around, with herds abound,
  The fields luxuriant are with corn,
Near where the town Bucyrus stands,
  All on Sandusky's rural bourn.

Whetstone's children died, and the body was buried on his farm—now owned by Michael Charlton. Since then, about six Charltons, nine members of the Chambers family, thirteen Conleys and others have been interred in this Whetstone burying-ground. The Roop graveyard, one mile southwest of the Conley Church, was also started at an early day. The Germans of the northern part of Liberty established the cemetery at the Reformed Church as early as 1832, and the one at the Lutheran Church was started about the time the building was erected in 1852. It is said that Waugne, a tinner of Sulphur Springs, was the first person interred here. Previous to 1830, a man named Wood, father-in-law of Asa Cobb, was buried on his own farm, and the Wood-Cobb burying-ground was started. Many who died in the vicinity of Sulphur Springs were buried about one-half mile southwest of the village. This little cemetery, on the edge of the woods, was started about 1835, when John Slifer owned the land. The graveyard on Henry Fry's land, near the Union Church, was started about the same time. The child of a Mr. Anderson died about 1848, and was buried on what is now John Adam Klink's farm. A cemetery was afterward regularly established here, which is owned by the farmers in that neighborhood.

The population of Liberty soon became numerous enough to secure for the township a civil organization under the laws of the State. For about four years, Liberty was temporarily attached to Sandusky Township. This statement is made for the following reason: Westell Ridgley and Joseph Young were commissioned Justices of the Peace for Sandusky Township, April 15, 1821, and, when their terms expired, on election was held May 15, 1824, with the following result: Mathias Markley, 22; Ichabod Smith, 22; Westell Ridgley, 17; Dezberry ward the first Justices of the Peace of Liberty Township, but they were both commissioned May 31, 1824, as Justices of the Peace of Sandusky, and sworn in as such by Zalmon Rowse, Justice of the Peace of Bucyrus Township. The Commissioners of Marion County, at their March session in 1825, passed the following order: "That surveyed Township No. 2, in Range 17 south of the base line in the district of Delaware be, and the same is hereby organized into a new township, by the name of Liberty." At this time Crawford was temporarily attached to Marion County, and Justices of the Peace had been commissioned for only four townships. For some reason, Smith received another commission, dated June 18, 1825, as Justice of the Peace for Liberty, but Markley still continued to hold the office by virtue of the former election. He was re-elected in 1827, and again in 1830, but, after serving for over eight years, resigned, and removed to Illinois. James S. Gorwell was elected to succeed him in November, 1832, and, since this date, the following persons have been elected as successors of Markley, one of the first Justices of the Peace of the township: John Slifer, founder of Annapolis, in 1835; William Woodside, in 1841; William Snyder, in 1847 (resigned after six months); Horace Rowse, in 1848; Robert Johnson, in 1851: Jonathan N. Harmon, in 1854; William H. Hise, in 1863; Clark Bacon, in 1872, but he refused the office, and A. R. Briggs was elected the same year. After serving for two terms, Briggs was succeeded by Squire Hise, the present incumbent, who is serving his fourth term. Ichabod Smith was re-elected in 1828, but, before his second term expired, resigned the office to take a contract on the Columbus & Sandusky pike. He afterward removed to Chatfield Township, and was honored with the same office. Asa Wetherby succeeded Smith, but he also resigned, and in secutive terms, and the following were his successors: Charles Keplinger, in 1846; Asa Cobb, in 1849, for the sixth term; Joseph Roop, in 1852, who served twelve years; Henry Fry, in 1864; Thomas Milliard, in April, 1873, who resigned after six months, and S. A. McKeehen, the present incumbent, was elected in November, 1873, and is serving his third term.

Dr. Squires, in his pioneer sketch, gives the following incidents in regard to the early courts and lawsuits of the township: "Lawsuits and litigations were more frequent in those early days, when there were few inhabitants, than at the present time, notwithstanding the vast increase in population and the more widely diversified interests of the people. So we conclude that the confidence with which man regards his fellow-man, and the intention among men to treat each other rightfully, has grown with the growth of the country. If not quite so fast as the country has improved in other respects, yet there has been a very manifest improvement. Previous to the election of Justices for Liberty, a legal process was served on John O. Blowers, who, in 1822, was summoned to appear before a Justice of the Peace in Bucyrus, to answer for indebtedness to one Schultz, of Bucyrus, from whom the said Blowers had obtained some shot for killing squirrels in his corn-field. The defendant appeared, and pleaded that the plaintiff had boarded at his house some length of time, and that defendant's wife had washed his (plaintiff's) clothes and mended them during the time for which defendant had received no compensation except the shot, and thereupon the defendant was discharged and judgment rendered against plaintiff for costs of suit. Probably the first lawsuit ever tried in Liberty Township was before Ichabod Smith, Justice of the Peace, on a complaint against Asa Wetherby for running his saw-mill on the Sabbath day. The defendant brought in testimony sixth year of his ministry. Rev. Stough held services frequently at the old Bell Schoolhouse and at the cabins of John George Klink, John Kroft, Jacob Mentzer, George Mollenkopf and others. About the year 1836, members of the Reformed and Lutheran congregations united in building a hewn-log church, which stood near the present site of the Reformed Church, and was occupied by both sects for many years. In 1852, the German Lutherans purchased a a lot about one and one-half miles east of this Union Church, and erected their present church edifice, which was the work of a carpenter called Gen. Taylor. Some seventy families are at the present time, connected with this congregation, which is in a flourishing condition under the charge of Rev. Charles Klessler.

The Lutheran Church (English) of Annapolis was organized about the year 1833, by Rev. F. J. Ruth, who was the first Pastor, and, at the same time, Pastor of the church at Bucyrus. Rev. J. Crouse preached to this congregation many times during the early history of the church. The ordinance of baptism was administered the first time on August 17, 1833, at which time the following persons were baptized: Lawrence Simmons, an adult; Elizabeth, daughter of Michael and Sarah Peterman, and Jacob, son of Benjamin and Louisa Sinn. Services were held at private cabins until the schoolhouse was built in the village of Annapolis. The congregation then occupied this schoolhouse until their first church was erected, in 1848. This building, the work of Gen. Taylor, mentioned above, was dedicated in June, 1848, and Rev. Ruth was still Pastor of the charge. This denomination has the finest church in the township—a brick edifice, built in 1876, at a cost of nearly $5,000. Over one hundred persons are at the present time members of the congregation, which is under the charge of Rev. W. H. Dolbeer.

When the Lutherans of Liberty erected their first hewn-log meeting-house, about the year 1836, they were assisted by a few citizens who believed the doctrines taught by the Reformed Church. A covenant was made between these two sects which provided that this building should be always open for the religious services of either denomination. Possibly the first ministers of the Reformed Church who preached in the township were Revs. Frederick Gottleib Maschop and J. Miller, who were Pastors of the congregation at Bucyrus from the year 1835 to about 1845. The organization of a congregation in Liberty was perfected under Rev. Wendel Wasnich, about the year 1848. Rev. Abraham Keller succeeded Wasnich, and continued as Pastor until he died of cholera in in the fall of 1852. After several months, Rev. Max Stern was placed in charge of the Reformed Churches of Crawford County, and, about the same time, their present church edifice was erected. Rev. Stern was succeeded by Rev. Eli Keller in 1856, who continued until the fall of 1861. Since Rev. Keller left, several Pastors have been employed who were not connected with the Bucyrus congregation, and, at the present time, the church consists of some seventy members, under the pastorate of Rev. W. Gilpin.

The German Methodist congregation, in the northwestern part of Liberty Township, was organized previous to 1850, by ministers connected with the church at Bucyrus. Services for several years were generally held in the little red schoolhouse erected some years previous on the Van Duzzen farm. About the year 1854, their first church edifice was erected on land donated by a Mr. Plummer. During the war, while the church was under the charge of Rev. Phillip B. Weber, this building was almost completely destroyed in October, 1862, by a mob, who were opposed to the draft. The and altar were torn down and windows benches smashed because the preacher advised the people from his pulpit the previous Sabbath to obey the laws, and drafted men to peaceably

P. B. YOUNG, physician and surgeon, Crestline. Dr. Young, one of the eminent practitioners of Crawford Co., was born in Columbiana Co., Ohio. March 8, 1832, and is the son of Jacob and Susannah (Brown) Young. His father died in 1849, and his mother in 1854. In 1855, the Doctor entered upon the study of medicine in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, completing the course in 1860. He began practice in Freedom, Beaver Co., Penn. In 1862, he entered the military service as Assistant Surgeon of the 136th O. V. I., and, in 1863, was commissioned Surgeon of the 2d Penn. V. I., in which capacity he served till the close of the war. He then came to Crestline and began the practice of his profession, and remained there ever since, where he sustains an enviable reputation as a man skilled in the practice of medicine and surgery. He was married in 1862, while in Pennsylvania, to Miss Sarah M. Gormley, a native of that State; they have one child, Howard B. Mr. Young is a self-made man in every respect. By his own efforts, he obtained an academic education and pursued his medical studies. During the twenty years of his successful practice, he has attended strictly to the affairs of his profession, devoting to it his entire time and attention. In 1874, he was appointed Railroad Surgeon of the P., Ft. W. & C. R. R. at Crestline, in which capacity he still serves this company. He has a beautiful and pleasant home, and is blessed with the respect of his fellow-citizens, standing high among them as a man of truth and principle.

J. B. YETZER, farmer; P. O. Crestline. Among the old and highly respected citizens of Vernon, and especially of the thrifty Germans in its southern part, is the above named gentleman, who was born in Vogelsang, State of Aargau, Switzerland, April 15, 1819. With his parents he removed to America in 1833, settling on his present property in 1834. His father died when the son was 22, leaving him as almost the entire supporter of the family. The country at that time being very wild, and requiring great labor, Mr. Yetzer worked hard to make his farm profitable and to support his father's family. He was married March 25, 1845, to Hippolyte Catty, who was a native of France; their union was blessed with twelve children, six of whom are living. His wife continued the journey of life with him until Dec. 23, 1876, when she died. Their children, who survive are all in good condition in life, and are such as a father might be proud of. Mr. Yetzer, throughout his life, has been a consistent Christian, adhering strictly to the principles of honest and upright integrity. He still lives on the farm which his labor improved, and has a comfortable home and pleasant surroundings. He stands high in the community, and is one of the best-read men of his township, and has worked hard to achieve his present prosperity, and is now spending the days of his old age in the quiet of the scenes of his early manhood.

stable was chosen; the Trustees appointed Abraham Hahn for the former position, and also James McLean as an additional Constable. In those early days, township offices were generally chosen regardless of the views held by them on national and State politics, and men of both political parties were elected. The political character of the township during the past thirty-two years can be determined by the votes cast for the different Presidential candidates during that period, and the result of each national political contest was as follows: 1848—Cass, Democrat, 207; Taylor, Whig, 214; Van Buren, Free-Soil, 14. 1852—Pierce, Democrat, 282; Scott, Whig, 212; Hale, Free-Soil, 7. 1856—Majority for Fremont, Republican, 95. 1860—Douglas, Democrat, 320; Lincoln, Republican, 419; Breckenridge, Democrat, 46; Bell, Unionist, 5. 1864—Majority for McClellan, 93. 1868—Seymour, Democrat, 535; Grant, Republican, 361. 1872—Greeley, Liberal, Republican and Democrat, 572; Grant, Republican, 394. 1876—Tilden, Democrat, 683; Hayes, Republican, 375; Green Clay Smith, Prohibition, 8. 1880—Winfield Scott Hancock, Democrat, 728; James A. Garfield, Republican, 476; Neil Dow, Prohibition, 11.

The first settlers of Bucyrus Township, and this section of Crawford County generally, reached their new homes by following the route of the old army road which entered the Township just north of the point where the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad crosses the line between Bucyrus and Whetstone Townships. It is said that this rough military road was made by Gen. Crooks, who marched through this section, with his army, in 1813, en route for Fort Meigs. This "old army road" could be clearly distinguished for many years after Crawford County was first settled. In the year 1822, a county road was established "from the southeast corner of Section 13, now a part of Sandusky Township, to Bucyrus; total length nine miles and two hundred and seventy-six rods. John Marshall was the Surveyor, and Marshal Beadle, Joseph Young and David Palmer were Viewers." This is the road in Southern Liberty Township, south of the Sandusky River, and is, possibly, the first surveyed and located from the eastern part of Crawford County to Bucyrus Township; for several years, however, this highway was in an unfinished condition. In the same year, 1822, a State road was located from Norton, in Delaware County, to Sandusky City, in Huron County; this extended through Bucyrus Township, along what was afterward known as the Columbus and Sandusky pike, but the first road was never finished. James Kilbourne was the Surveyor, and Solomon Smith and Luther Coe were the Commissioners. June 8, 1824, the Commissioners of Marion County established another road, "beginning at the east end of Crawford County, at the crossing of the road leading from Wooster to Upper Sandusky, on the line of said county, thence on the nearest and best ground to Bucyrus, making Daniel McMichael's mill a point. Joseph Young and Abel Cary were Viewers." This road was north of the Sandusky River, in Liberty Township, and much of the route has since been abandoned. The same day this road was located, the Commissioners authorized another "from a point on the Marion and Upper Sandusky road, near David Tipton's, thence on the nearest and best route to Bucyrus, making Benjamin Salmon's peach orchard, Benjamin Fickle's farm and David Bryant's, points on said road. Lewis Cary, Daniel Fickle and Samuel Norton were Viewers." This extended through Bucyrus Township, from southwest to northeast, and was near the present location of the Little Sandusky road. During the year 1824, what is now known as the Bucyrus and Mansfield road was located; Amos Earl, Amos Utley and James Perfect were Viewers, and John Cassaday was the Surveyor. The next first Mishael Beadle occupied the north forty of their first eighty-acre tract, and lived in a cabin which stood on the lot now owned by Mr. Silas Bowers, on West Mansfield street. David Beadle and his son David, aged about seventeen, occupied the south forty acres, and resided in a cabin situated a short distance southwest of the present end of Warren street. The Beadles did not remain in Crawford County, but, several years after they came into possession of this land, sold out to Samuel Myers and moved West." During the brief period these families resided in Crawford County, they occupied several different log cabins. Mrs. Rogers reports that at one time Mishael resided over the river a little south of where Joe Henry lives at the present time; old David Beadle then lived in the cabin formerly occupied by his son Mishael, and John Ensley over the river near Mishael. During the summer of 1822, Daniel, the little son of Mishael Beadle, died; this is the first death of which any satisfactory proof can be obtained that occurred in Bucyrus Township. The little fellow was buried on Norton's land; the exact site of this first burying-ground is the lot now owned by Hiram Fisher, at the corner of Walnut street and the Middletown Road. During the winter of 1822–23, Clarinda Beadle married a man some seven years older than herself; David Beadle was also married shortly after this, but did not live with his wife very long. Mishael Beadle also entered the Pettitt place now owned by Lorin Converse, which he resided on for several years, and John Ensley afterward located east of this on what was afterward known as the Minich estate. The entire Beadle family was of a restless, roving disposition; they spent considerable time hunting, and disliked hard labor. Samuel Myers, who purchased from them the eighty acres they first entered, at $6 per acre, reports that only eight or ten acres of the land had been cleared, notwithstanding it had been owned by the Beadle family for some six or eight years. The Beadles claimed to be Quakers, and the old man adopted the dress and language of this sect, but was never an honor to the Friends. It is related that he visited Zanesville for the purpose of buying a plow; the store-keeper did not wish to sell plows on credit so far from home, but Beadle talked so honestly that the plow-dealer finally consented. When the old fellow returned to Bucyrus, he made his boasts that his broad-brimmed hat had secured a fine plow; he never paid for this agricultural implement, and several years after he moved West, the Zanesville merchant visited Bucyrus for the purpose of collecting this bad debt; as he never succeeded, it is likely he never, after this experience with Beadle, trusted a Quaker who lived 100 miles from Zanesville.

The Young family, who, according to Kilbourne's song, "soon joined the others hand in hand," first settled in Section 5, Whetstone Township, on the farm now owned by William Holmes, in the Stewart neighborhood. The Young family, however, were large land-holders in Bucyrus Township at an early day. It is reported that the old gentleman, William Young, gave each of his children 160 acres of land; that George Black, who settled in Bucyrus at an early day, and married a Miss Young, received for his portion the fourth section, upon which the Sinn Mill is now situated. Previous to transferring this to Black, however, Mr. Young built a flouring-mill at this point; for some time it was a horse mill, and customers could not secure a grist without they took their own horses, and were sometimes compelled to wait many hours before their turn arrived. The tax duplicate of 1830 proves that George Young owned this fourth section at that time, and John and Jacob Young each had 160 acres southwest of George Young's farm; they were all residents of the township at that time, and a few of the present citizens of Crawford County are descended from the Young family.

Daniel McMichael settled in Crawford County

Geo Black m Elizabeth Young d/o Wm Young and he changed it into Bucyrus as a good sounding name. These two statements are both from responsible and reliable sources; it may be the duty of an unbiased historian to draw conclusions from these facts presented, and endeavor to settle the disputed point, but in this case we will not undertake the task but will refer the matter to the patrons of this work. However, this name Bucyrus did not suit some of the early settlers in the village, who were ill-natured enough to object to the Colonel's ideas about a queer name; it has frequently been, in later years, a stumbling block to many non-residents, who invariably mispronounce the word. But these early residents who objected to the name are nearly all dead, and those who fail to speak the word like a native of the city are not firm believers in the future destiny of the place, and consequently should not be consulted in regard to the name; undoubtedly all of the present inhabitants are satisfied, and many are proud of the name Bucyrus.

The town having been named and surveyed by Kilbourne, during the winter and early spring of 1822, a public sale of lots was advertised and held. By this time, quite a small settlement had moved into the vicinity, and some of these persons were occupying lots which they contemplated purchasing after all the necessary surveys had been perfected. Moderwell writes, in regard to this early sale: "The lots brought from $30 to $45 each; and those disposed of at this sale were all on Sandusky avenue and Walnut street, and but few south of the public square. Besides Samuel Norton, there were living here at that time Lewis and Abel Cary, Lewis Stephenson, Robert Moore, J. S. George, George P. Schultz, Samuel Roth, Harris Garton, Harry Smith, Russell Peck, E. B. and Charles Merriman, and a few others." This first public sale of lots was attended by many of the settlers from the surrounding country, and several farmers bought town lots during the early years of the village. One feature of this first public gathering of citizens to Bucyrus was the rendering by Col. Kilbourne of his "Song of Bucyrus," which ballad the author composed expressly for the occasion. The following is a copy of these verses as published in the Bucyrus Journal of March 24, 1853:

BUCYRUS SONG.

Ye men of spirit, ardent souls,
  Whose hearts are firm and hands are strong,
Whom generous enterprise controls,
  Attend! and truth shall guide my song.
I'll tell you how Bucyrus, now
  Just rising, like the star of morn,
Surrounded stands by fertile lands,
  On clear Sandusky's rural bourn.

In these wide regions, known to fame,
  Which freedom proudly calls her own;
Where free-born men the heathen tame,
  And spurning kings—despise a throne.
No lands more blest, in all the West,
  Are seen whichever way you turn,
Than those around Bucyrus, found
  On clear Sandusky's rural bourn.

The river valley, rich and green,
  Far as the power of sight extends,
Presents a splendid rural scene,
  Which not the distant landscape ends.
The bordering plain spreads like the main,
  Where native fruits its sides adorn,
And nearly join the margin line
  Along Sandusky's rural bourn.

First, Norton and the Beadles came,
  With friends (an enterprising band);
Young and McMichael, men of fame,
  Soon joined the others, hand in hand;
By various plans t' improve the lands,
  They early rise with every morn,
Near where the town Bucyrus stands,
  All on Sandusky's rural bourn.

There teams of oxen move with pride,
  Obedient to their driver's word;
There the strong yeomen firmly guide
  The ploughs which cleave and turn the sward,
The dale around, with herds abound,
  The fields luxuriant are with corn,
Near where the town Bucyrus stands,
  All on Sandusky's rural bourn.

Dear Roena,

Did you get a lot of Snow??? We got lucky and this last storm missed us entirley. I just recently found that I am also descendant from Young/JUNG of the Bedford, PA area on my mother's side and noticed in your faimly tree that you too have YOUNG on your mother's side. Probably not connected as I see your William YOUNG died in 1839 and I think the William in my line that would have been born about the same time was still alive in Bedford, PA 1840 census. Though your Young line could still have been cousins I suppose.

Here is what I have on YOUNG so far with some census record following:

as on April 15, of that year commissions were issued to Westell Ridgely and Joseph Young as justices of the peace of Sandusky township, Westell Ridgely then living near the present village of Leesville and Joseph Young near Bucyrus, neither town having yet been started or even dreamed of. Sandusky township then was probably from the western boundary of Auburn and Vernon to the western boundary of Bucyrus, about 15 miles, and from the southern boundary of Bucyrus to the north county line, 18 miles. It was easy to be elected to office in those days as witness the following from the recollections of M. Peters, a pioneer of Marion county. "The first election was held (1821) for one justice of the peace. There being no candidates, I selected W. Crawford and he selected me, and thus there was a tie. The clerk of Delaware county cast lot and drew for Crawford." But generosity has its reward as in the fall Squire Crawford resigned and Peters was elected.

The following is a complete list of the district and county officials since the organization of the county, the years given being the date of their election:

them again, and they left for parts unknown, drifting still farther to the west, leaving an empty cabin behind.

But during the year 1820 other settlers, real settlers, did arrive. The Beadles were the first in the spring of that year, David Beadle, with two sons, Mishael and David, and a son-in-law, John Ensley. Next came Daniel McMichael and Joseph Young, and during the year several others. In his song of Bucyrus Col. Kilbourne thus gives them:

> "First Norton and the Beadles came
> With friends an enterprising band;
> Young and McMichael, men of fame,
> Soon joined the others heart and hand."

Poetry is not the best method of writing history, as to preserve the rhythm and meter much of the detail must be omitted, so two of the first pioneers, Bucklin and Holmes, get notice as "friends," the same with son-in-law Ensley. As to Sears, he was not a pioneer and Col. Kilbourne did well to omit him. Young and McMichael, although classed as men of fame, were not more distinguished than Norton and Beadle, but the necessity of a rhyme to "came," occurring in the line with their names, gave them the distinguished honor of being famous.

The Beadles came across the Plains from the Quaker settlement of Friendsborough in Morrow county, and Mishael Beadle had his cabin on West Mansfield street, where the late Silas Bowers' residence now is; this was on the north 40 acres of an 80-acre tract; on the south 40 acres David Beadle had his cabin, and with him was his son, David, a young man of 17; their cabin was near the corner of Charles and Spring streets. The Norton daughters and Mrs. Ichabod Rogers state the Beadles were very migratory, Mishael at one time living across the river at the northwest corner of the Tiffin road and North River street, the old man and young David moving into Mishael's former cabin on West Mansfield. John Ensley, with his wife, Ann Beadle, also lived over the river, near Mishael's second residence. Mishael was married, and in the summer of 1822, the first death occurred, a little son of Mishael Beadle, and Norton gave the ground for a burial site, at the junction of Walnut, Galion and Middletown streets, and here the little boy was buried, the early pioneers all tendering what aid and sympathy they could to the afflicted family. That winter another daughter of David Beadle, named Clarinda, was married and later young David took himself a wife. Mishael Beadle tired of his residence over the river and entered a tract of land south of the present Oakwood cemetery, now the Magee farm, and here he was contented to remain several years, his brother-in-law entering the land just east of him, extending to what is now the Marion road. The Beadles were as fond of hunting as they were opposed to work, and when about 1826, Samuel Myers bought the original 80-acre tract they had entered only eight or ten acres had been cleared. The price paid to the Beadles by Myers for the land was $6 an acre. About 1827 they moved west. Bucklin also left the county, but the Nortons, the McMichaels and the Youngs are still here in the third and fourth generations. Joseph Young entered his first land in section 5, Whetstone township, nearly two miles east of Bucyrus; he built a small flouring mill run by horse power, on the river a mile west of Bucyrus, where Sinn's dam was later built with a regular water-power mill; afterward known as Couts dam. The mill run by horse power meant with him that a man brings his grain, hitches his own horse to the mill, and grinds the grain. He kept no horses himself at the mill. Later he gave the mill to his son-in-law, George Black, and a dam was built, and the mill run by water power and it became an important mill for years to come. Young also gave each of his sons 160 acres, as the tax duplicate of 1830 shows that George, Jacob and John Young each had 160 acres along the river near the mill.

Daniel McMichael came to this section in the fall of 1819, and spent his first winter on the banks of the Whetstone, eight miles from Bucyrus. He was there with his family when Norton was making his trip looking up a location. He was in what is now Crawford county, but then it was a part of Richland county, in the neighborhood of the Sharrocks. Daniel McMichael then moved into Liberty township in the spring of 1820, the first settler in that township, built a grist mill on his land on the river one mile northeast of Bucyrus, the first mill in the county. Then he came chapel erected just north of the township line. One of the most zealous workers in this church was Zachariah Welsh of Wyandot, at whose cabin religious exercises of prayer and praise were frequently held before the schoolhouses were utilized for that purpose. One of the most noted among the early Methodists was the Rev. James Gilruth. He was a man of powerful frame and with a voice to correspond, and a commanding air that awed even the turbulent element or "rowdies" one of whose favorite amusements it was to attend church for the express purpose of disturbing the meeting. His physical prowess was well known to this unruly class and there was little trouble from them when he occupied the pulpit. In 1823-24 he traveled a four weeks' circuit, which took in the neighboring villages of Delaware, Kenton and Bucyrus, with intermediate appoinments in the lesser villages. He often preached in Mr. Welsh's cabin and in those of some of the other settlers. In 1840 he was transferred to an Iowa conference, after having twice been returned to this circuit. He was followed in 1824 by Rev. Mr. Cadwallader. Once every three months the western part of the county was visited by Rev. James B. Finley, who, as early as 1817 was superintendent of the Wyandot Mission. The celebrated Russell Bigelow who was stationed at the Sandusky Mission in 1827, also preached occasionally in this district, to the great edification of the settlers, who came from miles around to hear him. Dallas was then part of the Portland District, Ohio Conference, which included in its bounds the state of Michigan. In the winter of 1836-37 Rev. John Gilbert Bruce conducted revival meetings, being assisted by Rev. Jeremiah Monnett. The presiding elder of Portland District from 1826 to 1830 was Rev. James McMahon, in 1836, Rev. Adam Poe, and in 1840, Rev. William Runnels.

One of the most able divines who ministered to the spiritual needs of the early settlers was Rev. S. P. Shaw, founder of Shaw University, Tennessee. He was a highly educated man and an earnest and powerful preacher. He was ordained deacon in the Ohio conference in 1827.

The "Devil's Half-Acre" is the name given to a locality in the midst of Dallas township, this side of the Scioto, which has been the scene of many unsuccessful efforts to establish a church. A log cabin stood on the spot previous to 1830, which was used for school and church purposes, and which after that date was replaced by another log building, which stood on the site of the present school building. Here efforts were first made to establish a society by the United Brethren, but without success. The Methodists made two attempts, under the Rev. William Mathews and others, but succeeded in making only a few nominal converts, who soon relapsed into the ways of sin. The Presbyterians tried under Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, but also failed. The United Brethren made a second attempt and were followed by the Disciples, with like results. It was then that Amos McMullen declared that he believed the spot was in possession of the Devil, which remark, becoming known, led to its being called the "Devil's Half Acre," which name it has since retained.

Prior to 1845 the eastern six miles of Dallas township were a part of Marion county, Scott township, while still another part belonged to Grand Prairie township in the same county. Among the citizens who resided in the Crawford county part, and were justices of the peace in the early days were Zachariah Welsh in 1824, Daniel Swigert in 1827, and Jacob Shaffer in 1828. The Crawford county records show many marriage ceremonies performed by Alanson Packard; he lived near Latimberville, in the Marion county part of the township, and was justice for many years. He was poetically inclined, as one of the entries on the record is as follows, the parties being in the Marion county section of the township:

"Marriage license was granted to Norton B. Royce and Eunice M. Dexter, March 14, 1832.

"I certify—that is to say,
This present March, the 18th day,
Eunice Dexter, Norton Royce,
As did your license authorize—
An awkward, ungainly, long-legged pair—
By me in marriage joined were.
By sages wise, it has been said
That matches all above are made.
If so, these ones in heaven have been:
God knows they'll never go again."

PREFACE

Some year ago the compiler was searching for certain early marriage records, and was directed by the Right Reverend Alfred Harding, D.D., Bishop of Washington, to the Broad Creek or Piscataway Parish Records. These are the oldest records for Washington, and are amongst the oldest for the Province and State of Maryland. They begin in 1693, and have been prepared in manuscript to appear in the subsequent volume, with other valuable and hitherto unpublished records.

The early Parish Records contain the compulsory recording of marriages, births, deaths, trials, etc., irrespective of religious affiliations, and were the public records kept before the formation of the counties. These records are not complete, but every entry has a bearing historically and genealogically upon localities and families throughout the United States and England.

COLONIAL CENSUS OF 1776

The deficiencies in the preserved Church Records, inscriptions, etc., led the compiler to search for other collateral data. A valued friend suggested the Archives of Maryland as containing valuable material, and they were drawn upon through the active coöperation of the Maryland Historical Society.

A Century of Population Growth in the United States, 1790–1900, Washington, 1909, pp. 3–4, says:

> The necessity for a national census, comprehending all the states, became apparent early in the Continental period (1774–1789). During the War of the Revolution, the Co[illegible]ental Congress had authorized and directed the issue of $3,000,000.00 in bills of credit. It had also resolved that the credit of the Thirteen United Colonies should be pledged for the redemption of these bills; that each colony should provide ways and means to redeem its proportion in such manner as it should see fit; that the proportion of each colony should be determined by the number of its inhabitants of all ages, including negroes and mulattoes; and that it should be recommended to the colonial authorities to ascertain in the most confidential manner their respective populations, and to send the returns, properly authenticated, to Congress. Massachusetts and Rhode Island took a census upon this recommendation in 1776, but most of the colonies failed to comply.

Page 185 of the same publication gives "An Account of the Number of Souls in the Province of Maryland, in the Year 1755" from the Gentle- nam's Magazine, Vol. xxxiv, page 261. Nowhere do we find any reference to the Maryland Census of 1776.

Through the active interest and assistance of Hon. Edwin Warfield, President of the Maryland Historical Society, and of its Council and Library Committee, permission was granted to photograph and reproduce important documents in connection with the related Parish and other records. A portion of the Census of 1776 is therefore herein reproduced as an important historical contribution to the early history of Maryland.

Heads of Families, First Census of the United States, 1790, enumerates the male head of the family, and gives the number of children, including the mother, etc. The Colonial Census of 1776, Maryland, part of which is herein reproduced in facsimile, enumerates "all souls," largely by names, even of babies, giving all ages at the time of enumeration. Peculiar value attaches to such information from whatever angle the data may be considered. One subscriber summarizes by saying "There is nothing to be found like this publication."

The expense involved in reproducing pages in facsimile, upon permanent uncoated paper, is deemed to be justified by reason of the resulting accuracy and permanency. To avoid all possibility of error through cleaning the plates, artistic appearance has been sacrificed, and the perpetuated blemishes occurring in the old and yellow documents bear mute testimony to the accuracy of the facsimiles. The remainder of the valuable Census of 1776 will probably be later published, if the support for the project justifies the expenditure. Those who desire such additional publication of the record will confer a favor upon all concerned if they will soon communicate with the compiler of this volume.

Especial attention is directed to the fact that this Census of 1776 (Frederick County in this volume, and certain unpublished parts of the census) is a census not only of Maryland, but also of the twenty-mile strip of former Pennsylvania soil and inhabitants brought into Maryland by the location of the Mason and Dixon Line (1763–1767). This should broaden the support accorded the publication, as the title might be made to read "Maryland and Pennsylvania Records, etc."

In using the Census of 1776 deduct from 1776 the figure following the individual enumerated, and you have the year in which the said individual was born. In the Census for Prince George's County, pp. 18–88 the ages of all male members of the family follow the name of the male head, and the ages of the female members follow the name of the female head, without giving the separate names of the children and servants. It gives the dates of birth of all living members of the family and is a valuable check list on the membership of the special families in 1776. It enables the reader to see what probable omissions occur in the enumerated births, etc., of the same families as given in the later volume of Parish records.

Cordial thanks for active coöperation are hereby extended to Hon. Edwin Warfield, President of the Maryland Historical Society, Mr. Richard H. Spencer, Corresponding Secretary, Mr. Robert F. Hayes, Jr., Acting Librarian, Mr. Charles Fickus, and others connected with the said Society; to Mr. Chas. W. Stewart, Superintendent Library and Naval War Records, Washington, D. C., for important suggestions, etc.; to Mrs. Margaret Roberts Hodges and her husband, Mr. George W. Hodges, Annapolis, Md., for important assistance in research and in furnishing valuable manuscript; to Mrs. Bell Merrill Draper (Mrs. Amos G.), Washington, D. C., for research and manuscript; to Mr. Leroy Stafford Boyd, Washington, D. C., for manuscript; to Hon. Hammond Urner, Chief Judge Circuit Court for Frederick County, Frederick, Md., for his interest and consent to publish records, and to Miss Nellie Carter Garrott, Frederick, Md., for copying the said records; to Mr. Ernest Helfenstein, Frederick, Md., for research and for manuscript. The accomplishment of the latter gentleman in perpetuating old tombstone records about to be forever lost is especially commended to numerous others who are in position to copy valuable records in the older portions of the United States. Dr. Edward B. Mathews, Baltimore, Md., very kindly granted the use of the Map of Maryland, etc., from his admirable The Counties of Maryland, etc., elsewhere acknowledged.

Cordial thanks are also extended to Mr. Ernest Lindsley Crandall for his skillful photographs of the original records; to the Joyce Engraving Company for skillfully making most of the illustrations, and to the Waverly Press, Messrs. Williams and Wilkins, Baltimore, Md. (especially Mr. John K. Mount who has shown continuous interest in the solution of the problems encountered in the work). Further mention will be made of the Right Reverend Alfred Harding, Bishop of Washington, and to other friends who have materially assisted in furthering the success of this undertaking, in connection with the subsequent volume to be issued next year. Further assistance by directing attention to unknown and newly discovered Maryland records, and by stimulating increased subscriptions for the several volumes will be greatly appreciated. To all the numerous active co-workers warmest thanks are hereby extended, and the hope is expressed that this volume may prove to be one of much interest and permanent value.
